I am a New Englander by many generations. I grew up in Connecticut, in a family of teachers and writers. My grandfather, like me, was a doctor and ecologist. After being blessed by a fine elementary school (New Canaan Country School, 1970) and high school (Milton Academy, 1973), I thumbed my nose at the family tradition of Harvard and attended Yale on a National Merit Scholarship. There my weakness with procrastination got the better of me and I became skilled at turning in term papers late, for which I graduated a point shy of magna cum laude (1977). I earned a Ph.D. (1985) in behavioral ecology at Princeton (which training, incidentally, I use substantially in my work in behavioral pediatrics), did a post-
